PREVIOUS ACTIVITIES

IOM Has Trained More Than 440 Professionals

In April IOM Bratislava organized two workshops in Trenčín and Dunajská Streda for officers from alien police departments and officials from labour and district offices, insurance company Union and labour inspectorate. The participants gained information on the latest legislative changes (Act on Residence of Foreign Nationals and Act on Employment Services), presented the activities and services of their institutions in the field of migration and solved case studies that can be helpful in their future work and communication with third-country nationals.

Since the beginning of this capacity building project for public sector and local government workers in 2010, IOM has organized 20 initial trainings and 12 follow-up workshops in seven regions of Slovakia. More than 440 professionals from key institutions all over Slovakia attended these events. More information.

All the World Came to Stará tržnica

During the second weekend of April, Nedeľná paráda (The Sunday Parade) took place in Bratislava's Stará tržnica (The Old Market Hall) as an accompanying event of the [9th \[fjúžn\] festival](#). In addition to concerts, circus workshop or theatre performance, migrant communities living in Slovakia also contributed to the great atmosphere. The visitors could get to know the culture and customs of different countries and also taste food specialities from Brazil, Iran, Ghana, Latin America and Kazakhstan. Among other organizations, the International Organization for Migration (IOM) presented both itself and the activities and services of the IOM Migration Information Centre \(MIC\). You can visit the photogallery from the event here.

Next Door Family film at the [fjúžn] Festival

Zuzana Vatráľová from the International Organization for Migration (IOM), Miroslava Hlinčíková from the Institute for Public Affairs and the Institute of Ethnology of the Slovak Academy of Sciences and Aaron Chase from the toy store Hravý svet met at the [\[fjúžn\] festival](#) in the discussion What Kind of Neighbours Are We? The audience learnt interesting things about research on the integration of migrants at local level and about migrants' experience with violence, and personal experience with life of foreigner in Slovakia. The discussion opened with the film Next Door Family documenting the coexistence of the majority communities and migrants in Slovakia and five other European countries. Read more.

Another 33 Refugees Are Preparing for Life in a New Country

In May 2014, a new group of 33 Ethiopian and Somali women and families with children arrived to Slovakia, where they were provided with a temporary shelter. The women and families with children had to leave their homes and they fled to Yemen. The refugees' return to their home countries is not possible; due to the trauma they had survived and risk of persecution, they were granted international protection and included in the program of humanitarian transfer of refugees. IOM organized their transportation from refugee camp to Slovakia. For a period of 6 months they will be accommodated in the Emergency Transit Centre (ETC) in Humenne. The Centre is an important part of the refugees' journey towards a new life. Here they will undergo medical examinations and complete other necessary preparations. After that IOM will arrange the refugees' transportation to the countries that will provide them with a safe home.

Courses of cultural orientation are part of the preparations refugees need to complete before resettlement. With the IOM staff they get to know the culture and customs of the country they will be resettled to, and so prepare as much as possible for their new lives already during their stay in Slovakia. Refugees receive information on social and health system of the receiving country; on how to look for a job or enroll in school; or on the currency of their new home and on how to plan their household monthly budget.

Trained Social Workers Are Helping Their Communities

In May 2014 IOM organized education sessions for 24 field social workers in the prevention of trafficking in human beings (THB). During the two-day workshop "Training of Trainers" lecturers from IOM introduced current trends in THB and their experience with the assistance to Slovak citizens who became victims of this crime. These victims come mainly from Eastern Slovakia, which is also where the workshop participants work. An important part of the workshop was a training of preventive activities that the workers can use in their work with communities and in passing information and skills in the field of prevention of THB to their colleagues.

The World in Your Palms

Representatives of migrants from different countries, in cooperation with the IOM Migration Information Centre (MIC), held already for the third time an event called “The World in Your Palms”. The happening took place in June in Kosice in the neighborhood Sídliisko nad Jazerom. Migrant communities presented interesting information about their countries, traditional gastronomy, music, dances and they created an especially friendly atmosphere. Visitors could taste the Thai soup, Indian main course and Peruvian dessert; admire Brazilian dancers and learn Latin dances; celebrate the festival of lights – Diwali; and most importantly get to know people from different countries and cultures from around the world, who live together in the metropolis of Eastern Slovakia.

Ms. Vu Thi My left her native Vietnam and departed for Russia to help her sister. Ms. My lived with her son for some time in Moscow where she worked in a garment factory. “I did not have enough money and experience to open my own business,” she said. Life in “My cousin called me to come to her to Slovakia,” she remembers. “She promised to pay a higher salary to me, but on arrival I found out that she had lied.” She crossed the Slovak border illegally. “I did not have proper documents and I was without any help from my family,” she remarks. „I really regretted my decision...” You can watch My’s entire story in the documentary film.
